SMALL GREENHOUSE.

Suitable for Premises Where the Slope of Land Is Not Right for the Ordinary House.

A profitable greenhouse for a farm or village place where the slope of land is not right for the ordinary sidehill house on a south incline may be made on the plan of the one operated by Ellis Haynes, Middlesex county, Mass. This house is 100 feet long by 20 feet wide. It runs southwest and the roof has two equal glass slopes facing the northwest and southeast. It runs across the slope of a side hill, with a gentle slope to the northwest. Upon the upper or southeast side the ground comes nearly to the foot of the glass, while on the opposite side earth is banked up to about the same height. Thus the part of the house below the glass is protected by earth on both sides and is very easy to heat. The roof and one end are of glass, single thickness, 11x24 inches. At the other end is located the building containing the office with the hot water heater in the basement. Hot water overhead pipes are used.

GREENHOUSE ON SLOPING GROUND

The crop grown is cucumbers. These are grown on benches raised from the surface. Mr. Haynes thinks they would do as well on solid earth. He finds the cucumber crop most profitable of any, returning him from $500 to $1,000 per year and averaging from $700 to $800. Two years ago the crop sold for $1,000 and his coal cost him $105. The house and heating apparatus cost $1,500. Mr. Haynes has had better success with his cucumbers than many of his neighbors, some of them having made an entire failure of the crop.-Orange Judd FIGHTING THE BORERS.

Unprofitable Dairy Cows.

One of the hardest things to ge farmers to do is to cull out from their herds the unprofitable cows. The dairyman that carries on his business in a thoroughly scientific manner will be all the time culling out the animal that he believes to be unprofitable Some of the heifers that are kept year after year in the hope that they may develop milking qualities. Yet some of these are so ill-formed in their udders that it can be easily seen that they can never be good milkers or profitable in any sense. If they are used for breed ers they are not likely to produce offspring that will be profitable. The animals that are unprofitable must be hunted out and disposed of .- Farmers

Drainage for Creameries. Creameries should be so located that drainage will be perfect. Then the drains or drainage pipes should be carried so far that the slops will go into some stream or onto soil that will absorb it. At any rate the scent from it should not get back to the creamery. It is better to so dispose of the drain that it will be placed permanently out of sight. While the creamery men are looking after the sanitation of the creamery let them be sure also that they do not create a nuisance near the dwellings or business places of other people .-

Deufness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mu-cous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be determed for dition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases of of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
